Dear Mr. Henry:

On behalf of the Board of Directors and staff of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), it is my pleasure to congratulate you and everyone at the International Staple, Nail and Tool Association (ISANTA) on reaching an impressive milestone—ISANTA's 50th anniversary.

ISANTA's decades-long commitment to safety and quality in the power fastening industry, particularly through the development and use of standards, has had a significant impact over the past 50 years. The technical resources and training materials that ISANTA has developed and contributed to have helped to enhance job site safety and improved outcomes for end users, while bolstering efficiency and technological developments. ISANTA's impact extends across borders through your work in international standards development, particularly as the ANSI-accredited Technical Advisory Group (TAG) administrator to the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) Technical Committee 118/Subcommittee 3, Pneumatic tools and machines. We, at ANSI, are proud to count ISANTA not only as a valued member, but also as an accredited standards developer and U.S. Technical Advisory Group administrator.

In acknowledgement of ISANTA's 50th anniversary, ANSI is sending a commemorative plaque to mark the occasion. Thank you for your invaluable contributions to the power fastening industry, and for your partnership with the private-sector-led standardization community and ANSI. As ISANTA celebrates this achievement and enters its next chapter, ANSI looks forward to your continued progress and collaboration in the years to come.

Sincerely,
